- The MoonMag is a coffee table/magazine publication - WE ARE NOT NEWS. While we aim to inform, our articles always reflect a positive nature to encourage innovation and development in Cryptocurrency, Web3 and Blockchain Companies.
- Conduct thorough research and fact-check all information included in the article. You may not be an expert on the article you are writing, but if you have done the background work, your article will read like you know your stuff.
- The style of articles should be conversational, positive, optimistic, factual and include your opinions as a writer to help the audience understand the article from your point of view. Develop your own unique voice, and readers will come back for your articles.
- Use quotes and citations to give credit to sources. Sources should only be linked to primary sources such as research papers, studies or original research and not to NEWS or OTHER ARTICLES (even if you wrote them).
- Use proper grammar, punctuation, and spelling. Edit and proofread the article multiple times before sending it to us for review.
- Use headings and subheadings to break up the text and make it more readable.
- Avoid plagiarism at all costs - all articles are tested for plagiarism. As our brand grows, this is more important than ever.
- Follow the publication's style guide; please include images that relate to your article if available.
- You are welcome to share a snippet of your article elsewhere but only part of the full article. If you share a snippet, please link it to the Moon Mag website. A snippet is no more than 1/3 of the entire article. We do regular searches to ensure our articles are unique to TheMoonMag.com - They must not be published before publication in TheMoonMag.com.
- We recommend using <https://app.grammarly.com/> to help check your article adheres to spelling/grammar/nuance and plagiarism levels. Document settings in the Set Goals screen seem to work best with Domain - General, Intent - Inform, Audience - Knowledgeable, and Formality - Neutral.

Disclaimer - if your article is not published, there will be no payments made. If we love your writing, we may hire you as a regular writer!
